

„While 2,3 million people incarcerated in the United States experience slowed time, other ‚free world‘ segments of the population experience frenetic time. Just-in-time-production, contingent and flexibel labor contracts, and digital devices elongate hours of labor and force some to be perpetually at work.“ (aus: Due time, TEMPORARY SERVICES, Chicago 2014)

Sachbericht

Compare & Contrast, Rahel Puffert

Probe #8

Körperskizzen + Pausenraum,
Karin Missy Paule Haenlein

